Duty of Charitable.
We give most worthily when we assume the worthy use of our gifts. The idle flinging of a coin to an undeserving beggar is not true benevolence; it is a cheap and easy way of buying relief to our own feelings. So to give to any cause which does not wisely and economically expend its receipts is foolish charity. In a word, it is as much a part of a giver's duty to examine financial reports as it is to read appeals for aid.

STRENGTH OF PEOPLE RESULT OF FIGHTING

REV. RUEGG GIVES SERMON AT CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH SUNDAY MORNING.

LIFE FULL OF BATTLES

Battles of Life Gives Us Strength of Character and Confidence in Christ Declares Pastor.

"Life is a battle," declared Rev. Samuel S. G. Ruegg of Williams Bay, in his sermon Sunday morning at the Congregational church on "The Advantage of Battle." The text of the sermon was taken from second book of Timothy, fourth chapter, seventh verse, where Paul testifies that "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept my faith."

In giving his sermon Dr. Ruegg carried the message of his text to the congregation in a wealth of expressions and ideas which pushed us to the other way—they are the enemy. God teaches our hands to war and our finger to fight and even Christ himself fought with the sword of truth.

Let us consider why life is a battle. In our infancy we know our parents fought for us keeping off disease and ill health and preventing us from falling into the thousand pitfalls whereby a life is snatched away in an accident or in a violent death. Then, as we grow older we have an education to fight for. You know those battles. Then it may be poverty, temptations, drink, bad habits, vice, the saloon, but the enemy is always there. Nationally we fight in the interest of a weaker brother and for better government. The enemy may change from one form to another but still he is always lurking in the dark, ready to strike a dangerous blow as soon as we let down our guard. The fight makes us strong.

In the days of ancient history the men—and even women—loved fighting. It was an occupation, the boys were trained for war. Today the same is true, but with a new aspect. Paul fought beasts—today we fight the lion of drink, vice and drug habit—far greater beasts than those conquered by Paul. The sturdy pioneers that came to Wisconsin fought hard times, subdued the land and formed a noble race. This was a fight for development and not of destruction. It is a battle to preserve human life and not for a slaughter of mankind.

The spirit of play, develops the spirit of fight. The boy who does not fight with his playmates, is not normal. The spirit of life-battle shows itself in the boy. The boy that does not play will land in jail, for without that fighting spirit shows itself early he will become a public menace. Men should take time to play, giving liberty to the fighting spirit and putting a keenness on their ability of playing the game of war. Germany has her war schools. War as a game—without the destruction—is a valuable thing.

Christ knows man needs battle. The disease, pestilence that stalks in the darkness under cover, are an enemy more dangerous than the combined armies of the world. Are not the men, valiant in spirit, who are in the front ranks fighting to find a cure for the white plague, cancer and other feared diseases that sweep human life, fighting a greater and better fight than our generals of the past. The ministry are fighting for mankind. Reformers are fighting against the evils of the country, and the mighty statesmen are fighting for better legislation. The spirit of progress is meeting with obstacles. How much of a battle did the great inventors have before they revolutionized the world's industry? Yes, let us face the fact that life is a battle and we are the defenders of Christ's name.

Modern civilization has a tendency to have people living in a spirit of stagnation of ease. The backbone of man was changed into a wishbone. The idea of life became—ease—money. The result is that the world has raised a crop of graters who are now fighting to keep out of jail. The life of ease does not make men—it is the spirit of battle, whether in business, church, courts or in play that makes successful people. The vast fortunes obtained by American youths has shorn them of character, and sapped away their very life. If you drink the blood of battle you are vitalized by victories.

Our souls have to fight. In every undertaking—I repeat—there is an enemy lurking. Everywhere there has been good accomplished, there was an enemy to overcome. Even the flowers, stars, birds, animals have their enemies as well as people and government. You know your enemy—now fight him. There are excuses lurking in the hearts of those who have not given their lives to God—those are the enemy of that person. God's plan is to bore the force of the enemy into your life. The very strength of the enemy is forced into your life in the moment of victory. Notice, if you will, the confidence gained by man when gains are made in his profession. It was a fight to "get there," but the obstacles that hindered success were later turned into future fighting strength.

There is a tremendous power in evil. In vice districts where minds are corroded, licentiousness prevails and the strength of man is sapped, it takes a fight to show the beauty in purity and peace. It is your fight and mine. God has given us strength and our life is a school of battles. When we are drawn to the course of death let us be able to say at the finish "I have fought a good fight and kept my faith."

Marquis Cusani Confalonieri, the Italian ambassador to the United States, asked to be recalled because his wife tired of living in a house where electric lights were a daylight necessity.

The Marchioness couldn't stand this and finally went home to Italy. She refused to return, and so her husband asked to be recalled.

Object of Education.

The entire object of true education is to make people not merely "do" the right things, but "enjoy" the right things; not merely industrious, but to love industry—not merely learned, but to love knowledge—not merely pure, but to love purity—not merely just, but to hunger and thirst after justice.—Ruskin.

EXPECT AUSTRALIAN TEAM HERE SHORTLY

Quartet of Davis Cup Tennis Players from Kangaroo Land Leave for United States Sunday.

New York, July 13.—The arrival of the Australasian Davis Cup team in this country during the present week is expected to give a great impetus to both the international tennis matches and the sport in general. The team, consisting of Brookes, Dunlop, Doust and Wilding, is one of exceptional strength and is considered to have an excellent chance of ultimately winning the trophy emblematic of the world's team championship in tennis. The quartet sailed yesterday and should arrive in New York on Friday or Saturday. They will go directly to the West Side club quarters at Forest Hills, L. I. for practice, moving on to Chicago at the end of the week for the first round against the Canadian team. These matches are scheduled for July 23, 24 and 25. Upon the completion of this match the Australasian doubles pair, Wilding and Brookes, will enter in the western championship in order to qualify for the national championship challenge round at Newport late in August.

While the Canadian team will consist of four players this year, including two former internationalists, it is considered unlikely that the combination can check the progress of the Australasians toward the cup finals. The Maple Leaf representatives include B. J. Powell and B. P. Schweng, both of Victoria, who played in the 113 cup round, B. C. Mayers of Winnipeg, and H. Sherwell of Toronto. Neither individually or as a team does the Canadian four rank with the Australasians and for this reason interest turns toward the English team which is at present playing, through the lower half of the draw on home courts.

Having successfully passed the Belgium team at Folkstone last week the English players are at present crossing raquets with the French combination on the championship courts at Wimbledon. As composed for these preliminary ties the team is composed of four enough to win its way to the final round against the Australasians at Boston, August 6, 7 and 8, but it is believed that England will select other players for the American invasion, since the winter ago sports tournament play abroad has shown that Kingscott, Parke, Mavrogordato and Barrett do not as a combination class with the Australasians.

Sport Snap Shots

Speaking of unusually capable memories, Bill Phelon, the Cincinnati sport writer, mentions an incident that seemed to hand the palm to Mayor Carter Harrison of Chicago. Phelon tells that a dozen years or so ago he was working in Chicago and tried to put on a boxing show there. He had all arrangements made with the fighters all lined up, and then he chased down to the mayor's office to get a permit. And Harrison was obliged to regret that he couldn't give Phelon the permit. A week or so ago Phelon was coming out of the West Side ball park in Chicago when someone touched him on the arm and said: "I'm sorry, Mr. Phelon, that I couldn't give you that permit." It was Harrison and he had not only remembered the incident, but he remembered Phelon's face and name. All of which Phelon regards as the most remarkable little memory performance that has ever come to his notice.

When Charlie Herzog, the Reds' manager, was first breaking into the game a man named Kellogg gave him a job with a semi-pro team. And Charlie was very grateful. It was his first real chance. So last spring when the Reds went south he got in touch with Kellogg. He discovered that his old time benefactor was working as a station agent in Chicago. Herzog invited him to go south with the team, and while Kellogg wasn't quite as spry as he was of yore, he showed that he could still play ball. And Charlie has given him a contract and kept him with the club. He takes part in a regular game occasionally, too. And his circumstances are somewhat better than when he was when he was a station agent in Chicago.

It seems that the Fed's plot is to annoy mostly the big league teams that give promise of making a show that they started in on the Pirates when the Phillies early in the season when these two looked like real trouble makers. And then when the Cincinnati Reds got well started the Fed's went after them and they have managed to grab things for the Reds made in the Red lineup and now the teams are beginning to weaken and limp in their gait. Other managers of promising teams are working a bit for fear the Fed's will next turn their attention to them.

Jim Vaughn, the Cubs' southpaw, is being billed in Chicago as the best portwheeler the game has seen since Jack Pfeister quit. He has been the Cubs' most consistent winner this season and is well worth the price paid for him and then a little. The Cubs got him from Kansas City for Lew-

Ritchie and $7,500. His wonderful speed and curves and excellent control are making most of the opposition gasp in despair. Harp O'Day is getting a great deal of use out of him.

There is a rumor afloat that Hugh Bennett, the world series hero of 1912, is to join the Cleveland Naps. It is generally agreed that Bennett would show more of his old-time form if he could get away from Boston and the Naps could surely use some of his old-time form.

FEDERALS DEFEAT BLACK HAWK NINE

Black Hawk Nine Lose Eleven Innings Game by Score of 5 to 4 at Driving Park Diamonds Sunday.

It took the Janesville Federals eleven innings to defeat the Black Hawk nine at the Driving park diamond Sunday, but the Fed's turned the trick in the extra inning by boosting over a lead of five to four. If the Black Hawk nine had kept from showing a little ivory baseball in the eighth and ninth innings the tale might have been different. Holding a ball while a runner is skipping around the sacks is not winning baseball, as the Hawks found out.

George Berger opposed Leo Liem, minger and neither showed any great amount of "stuff" during the festival. The infield of the Fed's played better ball than their opponents and Sullivan hauled down a couple of hot liners and then turned around and booted a couple of soft grounders. The Fed's started the game a rolling in the fourth when they registered two runs after the Black Hawks had scored one in their session. Things rolled until the eighth when the Hawks loaded the sacks and when McCue dumped a scratch single between first and second the fielders lost the ball and allowed three runs to score. The Fed's tied the count and the battle went two extra innings. Three hits by Berger, Stewart and Sullivan put the winning run across. On Saturday the Black Hawk nine met defeat against the Fort Atkinson nine at Fort Atkinson by the score of five to four, an unlucky score.

Summary of Sunday's game:
Federals: Porter, c; Berger, p; Beers, 1b; Sullivan, ss; Stewart, ss; Lee, 3b; Eckert, Spohn and Wade, fielders.

Black Hawk: McCue, c; L. Fleming, p; Dorn, 1b; Youngblut, 2b; McMann, ss; Flemming, 3b; Smith, Broderick and Mulligan, fielders.

Because they failed to tighten up in their teamwork at the proper time the Janesville Stars went down in defeat before the Edgerton Cubs at the Edgerton grounds yesterday. The battles were about evenly matched, both sides pitchers doing good work in the box. Hoveland obtained five strikeouts while Schumaker, twirler for the Edgerton team, fanned four. Four hits were made off each pitcher. An error in the fifth inning let one score in for the Cubs, while the second was

CUB UPRISING IMPERILS THE GIANTS

Captain Tommy Leach (left) and Manager Hank O'Day, photographed when he was an umpire.

Manager Hank O'Day of the Chicago Cubs, after getting away to a poor start, seems to have his boys working with almost the machine-like regularity that made the 1906 Cubs famous. The Giants are already badly scared. Among the speediest players on the rejuvenated Cub team is Tommy Leach, veteran of fifteen seasons.

obtained in the same way. Three Janesville men reached third base without getting home. The lineups for the two teams were as follows:

BIRDIE CREE IN OLD TIME FORM

Birdie Cree.

Birdie Cree is another comeback. The other day Frank Chance recalled him from the Baltimore Orioles, with which organization he had been playing class ball this season. The very first day Cree batted 1000. He went to the plate four times, ranned out three pretty hits, and on his other time drew a base on balls.

IRELAND'S CRISIS.

Two hundred and twenty-four years ago Sunday the battle of the Boyne occurred July 12, 1690. The contest took place three miles west of Drogheda, on the banks of the Boyne in Ireland. Today the Ulsterites are holding a celebration in commemoration of the event, the victory of the troops of King William III, the Orangemen, who had been called to the throne of England with his wife, Mary, a daughter of King James II, to supplant that monarch who had espoused the cause of the Catholic church and whose rule was obnoxious to English-speaking Puritans. King James' army was about thirty thousand, many French Catholics and Irish Catholics being in his ranks as well as a good sprinkling of English. King William's protestant army was of equal strength. The North of Ireland protestants being found in great numbers in the ranks. King James' forces met defeat with a loss of 1,500, while King William's victorious army lost but 500.

So much history teaches us. It goes on to say that it was this battle that assured the ascendancy of protestantism in England and was fatal to the cause of James II. An obelisk 150 feet high marks the scene of the battle, the anniversary of which is celebrated July 12 each year.

After the battle of the Boyne the Irish Catholics, who on account of their Jacobite leanings were oppressed by the English, began to form various semi-revolutionary societies, and the Loyal Orange institution, members of which were known as Orangemen.

Object of this organization was to see Roman Catholicism and to the union of England and Ireland and the protestant succession crown. Parliament was compelled to check the turbulence of the nation on several occasions from 1813 to 1828 it was suspended.

ay Ireland faces another crisis as important in its history as the battle of the Boyne. After years of futile attempts to obtain the rule, the English parliament granted it and the south of Ireland rejoices, ready to accept it, to assist their national flag to the winds and become free at last. But the northern Irish do not want home rule. They object strenuously. They have organized an armed force to resist its enforcement and today in Ulster hundreds of thousands of men and women are celebrating the anniversary of the victory of the protestants two hundred and twenty-four years ago while in the south murmurs of discontent are heard and a possible uprising is threatened for and against the cause that should be dear to the hearts of all Irishmen the world over—home rule. It is a critical moment in Irish history and the outcome will be fraught with much danger. It will take skillful management and cool heads to avert an open strife, and even the English government may be materially affected by the result which will be widespread in its influence. Today is a turning point in affairs and if the storm is weathered today it may be possible to avert bloodshed and civil war on the island that has suffered so much in years past.

A-B-C ALLIANCE.

If nothing else comes out of the Niagara Falls conference with a view of establishing peace in Mexico, it is probable that an A-B-C alliance will be formed similar in nature to the alliances of many of the foreign nations for self-protection and betterment of internal conditions. An exchange in commenting upon this possible alliance, says:

"Evidently before the Argentine Republic, Brazil and Chile could have ventured to approach Mexico and the United States for the purpose of mediating in the Tampico affair these powers must have been sure of their ground, in so far as it related to offering their tripartite service. In recent years the best of feeling has existed between these three South American nations. As the Niagara conference proceeded the mediators throughout the long-drawn sessions, proved one of the most encouraging features of the international affair which, however much it may have failed to accomplish all it desired, already is considered of vast importance to all America.

"Now comes the news from Rio de Janeiro that a project has been presented to the Brazilian Chamber of Deputies looking for a treaty that shall establish an offensive and defensive alliance between Argentina, Chile and Brazil. It may be possible that for a considerable time previous to the Niagara conference efforts to reach an understanding such as should bring the three most important nations in South America into an alliance have been under way. The fact is, however, that the announcement comes subsequent to the mediation work, and that the world is only now informed that negotiations for the making of a treaty are in process.

"There is no direct word as yet from Argentina and Chile as to whether these countries are ready to meet Brazil, which, as has been observed, is the initiator of the alliance. There are reports, however, showing that the Argentines and the Chileans are much interested and it may be assumed that in this instance the public viewpoint indicates that of the respective governments. An A-B-C alliance, it is inferred, would guarantee the territorial integrity of the countries concerned, and their political independence. It is said that the treaty would also deal with the question of armaments effort and on land, and that reduction in military and naval expenses would be a corollary to the treaty being signed. In all this the South American nations are evidently looking to economic as well as political progress.

KAREL AND KEARNEY.

Tomorrow the democrats of the state are going to gather in Milwaukee to probably endorse Judge Karel of Milwaukee for governor, and Kearney of Racine for the United States senatorship. It is all out and dried long before the gathering is called to order. Meanwhile prominent Wisconsin democrats have united in an appeal to the two factional leaders of the state's democracy—Aylward of Madison, and Karel of Milwaukee—to both withdraw from the race for the offices they seek and permit new candidates to be chosen that harmony may prevail and hopes for a democratic success at the November election be considered a possibility. It is said that Aylward is ready to play his part, but Karel refuses, so that the convention tomorrow will not do much towards harmonizing the various elements, it is safe to say. Rock county is sending its share of delegates. Some of them have been regulars in former years, but it makes no difference now and they will play their part in the conference Tuesday, as though Andrew Jackson followers from boyhood up.

Oiling the streets of Janesville is having its effect. This year the work has been accomplished in record-breaking time and by the time the cooler days come when autos will fly around, they will be in first-class condition. Speaking of streets and roads be it known that Rock county is also planning in some good licks building permanent thoroughfares this year that will be a credit to the whole community.

Now comes a man who is going to conquer the upper elements by sailing across the Atlantic ocean in a man-built airship. Exhaustive tests are being made to assure the success of the undertaking and despite all obstacles the attempt is to be made. With the Atlantic crossed it will be but a child's play to sail to Mars and back and report whether or not that planet is really inhabited or not.

Bryan urges the adoption of his measure to pay Colombia twenty-five millions whether it is right or not. He believes that the good will of Colombia will be cheap at that price. There are some people who are adverse to doing so and perhaps the senate will view the matter in like manner.

At last we learn that Huerta is to flee Mexico within the next day or two. This is official, it is said. It is also said that within a few months the people of Mexico will be seeking his return and he may consider doing so when the time is opportune.

Wilson is going to handle that Jones situation just as he pleases or there is going to be trouble, and serious trouble at that. He means what he says when he expects the senate to pass his orders just as the house does.

Next on the program is the Janesville fair, the Rock county fair and the Beloit fair. There are big fairs all in one county within a few days of each other. How is that for old Rock?

The Village Orator.

Under the spreading campaign tree, the village chestnut stands. A mighty orator is he and when he waves his hands and lets his voice sound full and free he draws out all the bands. He is a man of wisdom who knows how to save the state. He is a statesman through and through, but, it's sad to relate, his meat and grocery bills are due and he can't liquidate. The folks have known him many years and have gone on his notes. They know just when he'll shed the tears and tell his anecdotes, when he upon the stage appears and argues for their needs. He tells them how the nation bleeds with woe and discontent. He tells them what the nation needs and how funds should be spent. He tells of great financial deeds, but can't pay his own rent. He waves the starchy flag on high and makes the eagle scream. He yanks the stars out of the sky to punctuate his dream. It seems he never will go dry and ne'er run out of steam. He is a great economist, but is most always broke. The common people he'd enlist to deal a mighty stroke.

Uncle Abner.

After looking at the pious postcards of a town, the town itself is always a disappointment.

The teller who designs the men's hats has gone almost as daffy as the one who invents the hats for women. There ain't no watermelon that looks as good after you get it home as it did in the grocery store window. And it is about the same with everything else in this world.

It is a wise husband that knows his own wife when she has got her hair done up for a party.

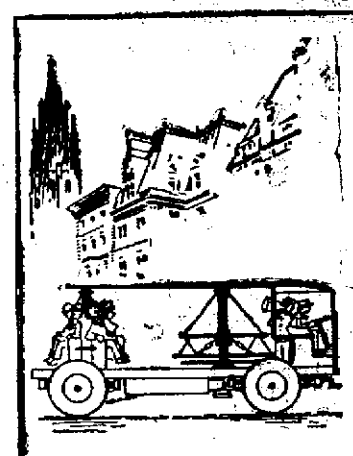

Well, the weather bureau hits it right, once in a while. Nobody kin guess the weather every time.

When a man tries to make an excuse for going out at night it is time to begin to watch him and it won't be long before his wife gets his number.

SPINNING SIGHTSEERS

"Rubber-Neck" Patrons May Take on a Corkscrew Curl if Not Careful.

When the popular "Rubber-neck" wagon was constructed on the amphitheater style there was little left for the sightseeing excursionist to ask for. The only criticism was that the necks of his neck were subjected to considerable wear and tear in his efforts to see both sides of the street. A further improvement has been made in the construction of these vehicles recently as revealed in a recent patent grant covering the new styles of wagon. If the "Rubber-neck" patron will just sit still and wait the other side of the street will come around to him. The vehicle is constructed by seating the excursionists on revolving platforms, which are maintained in motion by a connection with the motor which drives the wagon. Therefore as one is seated on this spinning platform both sides of the street will pass in review. Intending patrons of this style of dissipation must remember the awful fate of the owl which brought about its own destruction by its efforts to keep his eye on the hunter as the latter moved around and around the base of the tree in which the bird was located. The latter repudiated its reputation for wisdom for it stared at the man until its neck became so twisted that it broke under the terrible strain. Rubber-neck patrons must remember not to keep their eyes glued too long to either side of the moving panorama or they may meet the heart-rending-end which overcame the owl.

Precaution.

During the preparation for battle Pat emerged from his tent wearing his uniform hind side before. This soon attracted the attention of his superior officer, who demanded an explanation. ## Bargains:

An honest, useful word that through wide abuse has come to be considered with suspicion by many people. Yet there are very real bargains—opportunities which no other word so well describes. A certain percentage of the world's goods, perhaps as much as ten per cent, get into wrong hands and have to be sold at a loss to set the balance straight. The real bargains come most frequently, of course, to the best and biggest stores—the stores that have the biggest outlet.

In Janesville, for instance, the greatest number of these special values are presented through The Big Store, and from day to day we print the news of them. Know your store—be sure that it is dependable, and by watching these opportunities it is possible to save a great deal of money in the course of a year on the goods that have to be purchased.

INSTRUCTORS HOLD SWIMMING LESSONS

About Seventy Youths Are Present at Initial Lessons.—Adams School Grounds Opened This Afternoon.
About seventy boys were present this morning at Adams school grounds where the first lessons in swimming were given under the direction of Walter Cox and his four assistants. From nine thirty until eleven o'clock the water was crowded with the youths, the larger number of which were learning the art of pushing themselves through the water.
The spring-board and tower which have been placed in the area attracted the most of the attention of the boys. Belts for those who are learning to swim are being made and will be ready within a few days. Supervisors requested that all who attend the classes wear full swimming suits.
Tomorrow morning the girls of the Webster and Washington schools will go to Goose Island for their first lessons. Girls of all ages who do not attend the playgrounds are invited to be present. The directors will meet at nine fifteen to go, and take them to the island.
After a two weeks' delay, caused by the grading, which was necessary, the Adams school was opened for the children. The lot was opened, placed and ready for use. The attendance was estimated at one hundred during the afternoon, which is on an average with the opening days of the other three grounds. Raymond Bledsoe of Beloit college, has charge of the children.

EXPIRED ON SUNDAY AT DAUGHTER'S HOME

Mrs. Catherine Oliver, Aged 75, Succumbs.—Remains Taken to Braidwood, Ill., for Burial.
Mrs. Catherine Oliver passed to the beyond Sunday morning at three o'clock at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles L. Mohr, 495 South Main street, with whom she made her home for the last two years.
Catherine Jones was born in Swansea, Wales, July 9th, 1839. She came to this country when twelve years of age and lived at Dodgeville, Wis., where her father first settled, he being a Welsh Congregational minister. Growing up in this pioneer home she had developed a character of unusual strength which has served her well in after years to meet the many problems of the widowed mother of a large family of children. She was married to Evan Oliver in 1856 and he preceded her death in 1887. To the household he left behind him eleven children, one dying in infancy, leaving six sons and four daughters to grow to man and womanhood: William Oliver, N. Topeka, Kans.; Mrs. Thomas Stevens, Joliet, Ill.; Mrs. Mary Reese, Spring Valley, Ill.; Charles Oliver, Nanamoo, British Columbia; David Oliver, Braidwood, Ill.; Evan Oliver, Joliet, Ill.; Mrs. Charles L. Mohr, Janesville, Wis.; Mrs. J. N. Hodge, Joliet, Ill.; Mrs. Charles Joliet, Ill.; Gene Oliver, Chicago Heights, Ill.
Her chief joy was her home and her children and her life a continual sacrifice for those she loved. Her illness was of short duration and her passing most peaceful.
A short prayer service was held at the home on Sunday evening, conducted by Rev. Joseph Chalmers, pastor of the First Baptist church. Funeral services and burial will take place from the home of her son, David Oliver, at Braidwood, Ill., Tuesday afternoon.

FOUR DRUNKS GIVEN COMMITMENT TERMS

Beloit Man Pleads Not Guilty to Speeding in Afton.—Three Drunks Draw Seven-Day Terms.
Four drunks—two Sunday and two Saturday "nighters" were arraigned before Judge J. E. Maxfield in the municipal court this morning. The hot weather was blamed by several of the men for their over-indulgence, but the excuse was not taken into consideration by the court. Her last store bottle was found on one of the Sunday drunks.
Gus Sponsburg fared the worst of the lot, drawing a total sentence of forty-five days on the charge of being drunk and disorderly. Sponsburg has made previous visits before the police court and Sunday was arrested on High street for assaulting women. Ten days and twenty dollars and costs, or thirty-five additional days additional, was the sentence given when Judge Maxfield heard the statements of the arresting officer regarding Sponsburg's conduct.
Edward Devens, who recently completed serving a "bit" in the "str," was given seven days on seven days. Devens is from Rockford, and was enroute to Footville, but was too drunk to get on the train and was arrested at the Northwestern station Saturday. Judge Maxfield gave Devens warning that drink would soon land him in prison if he kept up his present pace.
John Homer, transient laborer, evidently had a light head, for although he had only a small portion of liquor out of a drug store bottle, he was very intoxicated when "pinched." Homer admitted the truth of the charge in court and was given five dollars or seven days.
Otto Johns of Milton, drew seven days and refused to take the pledge.
W. C. Kneibush of Beloit, through his attorney waived the reading of a warrant charging him with speeding in Afton and pleaded not guilty. His trial was set for July 29th. The complainant in the case is E. Waters.

REVERSES DECISION IN GRIFFIN ACTION

Judge Grimm Reverses Decision of Court Commissioner Carpenter in Mabel Griffin Case.
Mabel Griffin will soon be in jail again. This morning Circuit Judge George Grimm reversed the decision of Court Commissioner E. C. Carpenter on the habeas corpus proceedings and ordered that Miss Griffin be returned to the custody of Sheriff C. S. Whipple until her trial in the municipal court.
The writ of habeas corpus was granted to Attorney E. H. Ryan by Court Commissioner Carpenter after Judge H. L. Maxfield found there was sufficient evidence against the girl to stand trial on the state's charges of frequenting a disorderly house some months ago. After the examination Judge Maxfield committed Miss Griffin to the county jail but the commitment was not delivered owing to the habeas corpus writ. Last week District Attorney Dunwiddie and Attorney Ryan argued the matter before Judge Grimm, who reversed and revoked the order of the court.

HOLD OPEN HEARING TO ASSESS COMPANY

Tax Commission and Board of Review Unable to Reach Final Assessment of Janesville Electric Company.
Owing to incomplete property assessment in districts where the Janesville Electric Company owns property, the hearing to determine the correct assessment of the corporation was held open until the township and Janesville assessors have their books completed. E. C. Lyons, president of the company, and Frank A. Taylor, income tax collector of this district, were present at the hearing before the board of review at the city hall this morning.
The meeting was called by Mayor Falters, president of the board, with Councilmen Cunningham and Goodman present. The Electric Company was represented by M. G. Jeffris, P. H. Korst, George Sutherland and Norman L. Carle. The assessment reached by the assessors of $358,250.00, a decrease of $21,350.00 in favor of the company, was discussed, as was the method of assessment of taking the 1913 assessment of $359,600.00 and allowing $21,350.00 depreciation claimed by the company. The complete data were deemed necessary by Commissioner Lyons and the members of the board of review to establish an equal assessment with the property in the districts where the electric company owns property. The next hearing will probably be in Madison. Because of the incomplete books of Frank Smith, city assessor, the board of review will probably not open their session until next week.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt of New York, international president of the Woman's Suffrage association, deprecates the argument of anti-suffragists that the methods of the English militants constitute a sufficient excuse for refusing American women the ballot. "To oppose because of this small group of warring Englishwomen the vote for women in America, where there has been neither rebellion nor cause for it, where exists the most vigorous campaign of education to obtain political equality in accordance with the institutions of our country, would be as absurd as for a Czar of Russia to refuse his people a Duma," says Mrs. Catt.

LIBRARIAN SUBMITS ANNUAL STATEMENT

MISS GERTRUDE COBB HAS COMPLETED REPORT OF PAST SEASON'S WORK.

CIRCULATION INCREASE

Is Far From Encouraging—Over Five Thousand People in City Are Holders of Cards.

Librarian Miss Gertrude Cobb of the Janesville public library has completed and submitted her annual report to the library board. The following figures show that over a third of the city population are possessors of cards, constantly securing books for reading matter from the local institution. The report is as follows:

To the Board of Directors, Janesville Public Library, Janesville, Wis., Ladies and Gentlemen:

I have the honor of submitting to you the following report for the year ending June 30, 1914.

The figures in the accompanying statistical report are I think, encouraging, although the increase in circulation over that of the previous year is very small.

Circulation.

The library was open for the circulation of books 306 days, and circulated 54,942 volumes, which with the school circulation of 61,664, an increase of only 397 over that of last year.

Last year's report showed a large increase in the number of books loaned from the adult department, with a decrease in the circulation of the children's department which brought the total increase down to 1620.

This year's conditions are reversed, and the decrease is now in the adult department. However, the statistics in both departments show as they did last year, a most encouraging increase in the number of non-fiction books circulated. The percentage of non-fiction circulated last year was 22, an increase of 4 per cent over that of the previous year. This year it has risen to 28 per cent. In the adult department an increase is shown in every class of non-fiction except general fiction. An especially large increase is noted in the following classes: General Fiction, Fine Arts, Literature, Travel, and Biography. The number of current fiction titles is also largely increased.

In the school department, this increase in the non-fiction circulation and decrease in the amount of fiction circulated is, I believe, owing in part to the adoption of a required reading list for the English classes in the Janesville High School. The library has done everything possible to assist in making this innovation a success. Special shelves have been set aside for the books on the High School list, a considerable portion of the loan fund has been spent to supply the needed books, many duplicate copies of those most in demand have been purchased, and the pupils have been assisted in their choice of books whenever possible.

The demand that a public library supply a liberal amount of good and wholesome fiction is a legitimate one, and should, as far as possible, be met, but it is gratifying to note the increasing amount of non-fiction circulated, as it indicates that the public is cultivating a taste for more profitable literature.

Rent Collection.

The rent collection has helped to supply the demand for fiction, and has been limited, as heretofore, strictly to duplicate copies of books on the regular shelves. One hundred and ten volumes have been added to the library from this collection, which contains at present 46 volumes. The total receipts for the year were $12,332, and the expenditures for 1914, $12,119.

Fifty hundred new shelf holders, a pencil sharpener, and an extra subscription each, for circulation of Popular Mechanics and Technical World.

have also been purchased from the proceeds of the rent collection.

Additions and Withdrawals.

The more generous appropriation received this year has resulted in a considerable increase in the number of books added to the library. Eight hundred and forty volumes were added by purchase, 52 by binding, 110 from the rent collection, and 286 by gift, including government and state documents, making a total of 1,298 volumes.

The number of withdrawals is almost as large, 1236, leaving a net gain of but 62, and making the total number of volumes in the library 18,512. The large number of withdrawals includes books lost in circulation, missing at inventory, worn out, destroyed on account of contagious diseases, and also many out-of-date and unsuitable books, the withdrawal of which improves rather than weakens the library. The inventory this year shows 29 missing volumes.

The most important book addition of the year is the new eleventh edition of the Encyclopedia Britannica, which greatly strengthens our reference collection.

The reports of the Smithsonian Institution, the Year-Books of the United States Department of Agriculture from 1906 to date, and a number of publications of the Wisconsin Historical Commission and the Wisconsin State Historical Society were accessioned and catalogued, and thus regularly added to the library. The Smithsonian Reports and Agricultural Year-Books are included in the books analyzed in the Reader's Guide, and the cataloguing of these volumes adds much to the library's material on science and agriculture.

A valuable addition to the local history material in our reference department is the files of the Janesville Recorder, which were sent to the library when the Recorder was purchased by the Janesville Gazette. The 40 volumes which were published before the year 1900 have been shelved, listed and shelved where they are available for reference, and the later volumes, which are duplicates of those belonging to the library, stored in one of the unused rooms upstairs.

We have tried, in our book buying, to strengthen the different classes by adding the needed volumes as fast as our fund would permit, to replace worn out and unattractive copies of the works of the standard authors with attractive editions, and to supply the largest number of attractive juvenile books to send to the more distant schools. If next year's appropriation permits, the school duplicate collection should be much increased, as the teachers at many of the schools could circulate many more books if we could supply them.

Registration.

One thousand, two hundred and fourteen new borrowers were registered this year, and 242 cards were withdrawn, leaving a balance of 3079 card holders, more than one-third of the population of the city. The users of the library are not limited to those registered, as there are many patrons who regularly use the reading and reference rooms who are not card holders.

Sunday Opening.

Besides the 306 days on which the library was open for the circulation of books, the reading room was open on 35 Sunday afternoons. The average attendance was 26. Although this is less than the average recorded last year, the librarians feel that a larger number came to read and study, and fewer merely for pastime.

Binding.

During the year 62 volumes of magazines, 11 Patent Office Gazettes, and 5 newspapers were bound, and 307 volumes bound at a cost of $223.20.

Fifty volumes were bound by Braun and Valters of Chicago, in exchange for unbound duplicate magazines which had been stored in the basement, thereby lessening the amount of money spent for binding by twenty dollars.

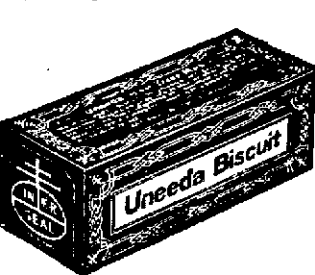

As the result of the regular mending of the books, and the liberal amount spent for binding during the past two years, the books are in better physical condition than for some time past.

Cataloguing.

During February and March, as for several years past, the library has received valuable assistance from the students of the Wisconsin Library

Respectfully submitted,
GERTRUDE COBB, Librarian.

Report of Children's Librarian.

The circulation of books from the children's room shows an increase of 1024 over that of last year. Part of this increase is due to the fact that more children have been interested in drawing two books on a card, and are reading science, biography, travel and history, as well as fiction. The circulating copy of St. Nicholas has also proved very popular.

The circulation of books in the school duplicate collection shows very little increase, and more books are needed to send to the grades, as we have very few, considering the number of children eager to take them. These books issued by the teachers to each many children living at a distance from the library, and more books should be added to supply the demand. The schools were visited in the fall, the distant ones a second time in the spring. Application blanks were given to those not already holding cards, and the graded reading lists distributed to all the children. In the upper grades short talks were given on the arrangement of books in the children's room, and in the lower grades stories were told if asked for, pupils and teachers were urged to use the library for aid in the school work as well as for pleasure.

Twenty-one story hours were held during the winter with an average attendance of 46 children. The King Arthur and Robin Hood cycles were told, as well as miscellaneous stories, all leading to requests for the books containing them.

The exhibition of books suitable for Christmas gifts was held during the holidays, with even more success than last year. Many parents and friends came to look at the display and receive instructions for their buying.

410 new borrowers registered through the year, making a total of 1662 children having cards.

AGNES T. BUCKMASTER, Children's Librarian.

MILTON JUNCTION

Milton Junction, July 13.—Rev. L. C. Randolph of Milton, occupied the pulpit at the M. E. Church yesterday morning. In the evening the church and Epworth League held a joint meeting, at which Prof. Barbour of Milton college gave a very inspiring address.

Max Maunke of Milwaukee, is spending a few days with the home folks.

Mrs. Helen Kern and Miss Dorothy Auer have been visiting at Oconomowoc, where they will visit Rev. Perry and family.

Miss Edna Hilker has again resumed her duties at the Ed Emerson store, after having been absent for a visit.

ORFORDVILLE

Orfordville, July 13.—T. O. Rime arrived home on Saturday morning, from a three weeks' stay in Mexico, as deputy Oil Inspector, C. A. Lytle of Monroe, was in the village on Friday, on business pertaining to his office.

Victor Noonan was quite severely injured on Friday by being kicked by a mare that he was caring for. The animal was nearly blind, and was taken by surprise when Noonan entered the stall to feed him. The injured boy was taken to the office of Dr. Forbush, where he is being treated.

As the result of the regular mending of the catalogue case is completed, and the catalogue is much improved, and an ever increasing number of patrons are learning its value.

Work With Schools.

Instruction in the use of the card catalogue and periodical indexes was given in the eighth grades of all the public schools and one parochial school. The librarians gave three talks on consecutive mornings at each school, after which the children came in groups of about 15 for an hour of practice work. The teachers gave all possible assistance, and the children books re-bound, making a total of 355.

Three visits were made to the Continuation School, after which three groups of girls, accompanied by Miss Kelkha, came to the library for practice work.

Reference.

The usual amount of reference work has been done for clubs, schools and individuals, and many reference lists prepared. Material has been borrowed from the Library of the University of Wisconsin, the State Historical Library, the University Extension Department, for the use of patrons, and pamphlets and books needed for the school debate teams obtained from various sources.

Six study clubs and the Janesville Civic League have had a special shelf each in the reference room, where books and other material have been reserved for their use.

The pamphlet collection has been much enlarged, and its arrangement in the vertical file makes it easy of access. Some of the best reference material on present day topics is in pamphlet form.

The mounted pictures which the library owned, have been labelled according to the Newark system, and arranged in the vertical file, and many added to the collection.

While the collection is still small, our efforts have been to obtain first the pictures useful to teachers in their school work.

Building and Equipment.

Last August the building received a thorough cleaning, extra help being employed to assist, and it has since been kept in good condition. The heating plant was put in order at a cost of about $200. The grounds have been improved by the planting of shrubs, and except for the walls, which great need redecoration, the building is in good condition.

A vertical file has been added to the furnishing and 650 new shelf label holders improve the appearance of the book shelves.

Library Hall.

The Women's History Class, Athena Class and the Janesville Art League have met regularly in Library Hall, and many other organizations and committees have held occasional meetings. During the winter months there were a few days when the hall is not used for the meeting of some club or committee.

It has also been rented for an art

DOWAGER QUEEN AT WOMEN'S COUNCIL

There was much doubt as to whether or not the Dowager Queen of Italy would attend the recent International Women's Council held at Rome, although Queen Margherita had entertained the official members of the council at tea. Doubt was changed to surprise, however, when the Dowager Queen not only signified her intention of being present, but insisted on shaking hands with every one of the several hundred visitors.

Pearls and Rubies.

Pearls may be found nearly anywhere in waters inhabited by oysters or mussels. Some of Canada's fresh water pearls have a fairly high value.

The Mississippi has also yielded valuable pearls. Rubies have usually come from the East—India or Ceylon—though South America has furnished some good specimens. Oil wells are really excavations into underlying lakes or "fields" of petroleum, generally found on this continent just above the Trenton limestone formation.

Pearls may be found nearly anywhere in waters inhabited by oysters or mussels. Some of Canada's fresh water pearls have a fairly high value.

The Mississippi has also yielded valuable pearls. Rubies have usually come from the East—India or Ceylon—though South America has furnished some good specimens. Oil wells are really excavations into underlying lakes or "fields" of petroleum, generally found on this continent just above the Trenton limestone formation.

The Lapse of Enoch Wentworth

By
ISABEL GORDON CURTIS

Author of "The Woman from Webster"

Illustrations by Elsworth Young

Copyright, 1914, by F. C. Brown & Co.
"Ladies and gentlemen," Wentworth began, in a voice which was low, but so marvelously distinct that each syllable carried to the farthest seat in the house, "this is not a curtain speech—you have not called me before the footlights tonight; it is a confession."

Enoch paused as if mustering strength to go through an ordeal. He felt the curious scrutiny of a thousand eyes. "It is a confession," he repeated slowly, "a confession which has been long delayed."

He never finished his sentence. Merry stepped forward and laid his hand upon the man's arm with a clinging grasp which was full of affection, even while it pushed Wentworth aside. "Allow me," then, he laughed. "Good people, one and all, who have so long been friends of mine, this is my confession, late in the day, as my friend Wentworth suggests, but it is mine. He was simply breaking the news to you that I wrote 'The House of Esterbrook.'"

He hesitated for a moment, then Enoch touched his arm as if in protest. Merry smiled and gently put him aside. A whisper of startled surprise ran through the house, followed by a moment of hush, then applause. It subsided slowly. During the tumult men and women who kept their eyes upon the stage saw Wentworth turn as if pleading vehemently. Merry answered with a few decisive words, then he stepped down to the footlights.

"We have saved this confession, ladies and gentlemen," he began gravely, "not to create a sensation or to further advertise the play, but each one of you must realize how the public distrusts a jack-of-all-trades. Many of you doubted the ability of a Merry Andrew to touch human emotion ever so lightly, and came that first night with eager curiosity to see him in the character of 'John Esterbrook.' How much more would you have hesitated if you had known that this same Merry Andrew was the author of the play? Hence the secret, to deceive you until an honest verdict had been rendered. Tonight I release my friend Enoch Wentworth from the role he has carried for ten months. I also wish, before you, to acknowledge a large indebtedness to him. For years he has been the truest friend a man ever had. He has believed in me, encouraged me, and to his untiring labor you are indebted for much of the perfect detail which carried 'The House of Esterbrook' to success. He has helped me in the dark hours when success in my profession seemed to be something I could never achieve. When I have been dragged down by the devils of despair his was the hand that lifted me up and with kindly deeds and encouraging words has kept me striving for the place which at last seems to be not entirely out of reach. I need not speak of his last great proof of his friendship for me, you all know how he almost lost his life in saving me from almost certain death. Good people, I owe much to Enoch Wentworth, and it is a great pleasure to acknowledge it in this public manner."

The audience saw Wentworth stare as if in utter amazement when Merry began his confession. Then his eyes grew misty, and when the young actor turned to him with an affectionate smile, he gripped the hand held out to him as a man does when he cannot put love or gratitude into words. Across the footlights men and women realized vaguely, through the strange human insight we call intuition, that another drama was being played before their eyes; a life-and-blood drama, where the feelings of strong men were deeply stirred.

"Good Lord!" said Singleton. Oswald turned with a start as if he had been aroused from sleep. The newspaper man stood at his elbow with a look of blank astonishment in his eyes. It passed quickly, however; he was a trained newspaper man, all his news instincts were aroused, he was on the track of a story. Here was something he must get to the bottom of. He scented a mystery and was immediately on the alert for anything that might give him a clue to start on.

His paper must have this big story, it was big, he was sure of that. He turned suddenly to the man at his side.

"What's back of all that?" he asked. "I can understand that Merry wrote the play, I've known Enoch Wentworth for years, and I was never so staggered in my life as the first night when I saw 'The House of Esterbrook.' I went to the office afterwards to write my stuff and I sat for ten minutes—dumb, stupid—trying to figure out how Wentworth, the Enoch Wentworth I knew, could have written it. How long have you known this?"

"I have known it," answered Oswald quietly, "just as long as you have."

"Then I'm right," cried Singleton. "I knew Merry was lying when he stood there on the stage giving us that bluff about Wentworth carrying the secret for him. Merry wrote it all right. I might have guessed it long ago. I say, do you know there's a devil of a big story back of all that?"

Oswald's face grew stern.

"You see I know both of the men so well," went on Singleton eagerly. "Why, they were a regular David and Jonathan pair ever since I met them first. Enoch was forever setting Merry on his pins. The actor would go off, Heaven knows where, throw over a part, and drop off the edge of the world. I don't believe he dissipated exactly; he simply tossed his money away and went downhill. Wentworth would hunt him up and drag him back where he belonged. He straightened up suddenly when he began to play 'John Esterbrook.' You can't even pull him into a poker game now. I guess I took the winnings at the last game he stood in for. That night I had a great mind to hand the money back to him. We said 'Good-by' about daylight. He looked pessimistic and glum. No, he wasn't glum either; Merry never gets glum. He had a down-and-out, don't-give-a-damn expression that morning. I can see him yet. Suddenly he disappeared again. When he came back Wentworth and he cut each other dead. That Paget woman affair began, then Wentworth saved Merry's life. Why, it's a tremendous story!"

Oswald turned abruptly. Something in his quiet gaze made Singleton shift his eyes with a start of guilt. "I want to say a word to you," the Englishman's voice was stern, "and I want you to repeat what I say to every man in your fraternity. There may be a big story somewhere behind this—I cannot tell. If there is, an enemy or a misunderstanding did exist, if there was a wrong done, or if anything lies behind these two men which we do not comprehend, leave it to them. They have buried it. Don't turn ghoul," he pleaded, "and dig it up. Simply to make a curious, heartless world buy your paper for a day or two. I am told there is a bond between newspaper men, like a warm-hearted brotherhood. Wentworth belonged to that brotherhood; he does yet—remember that."

Singleton stretched out his hand with an impulsive gesture. "Thank you, Mr. Oswald. You're a good deal of a man. I never knew you before. We all need a jog on the elbow once in a while. A newspaper man grows a buzzard when a story is in the air. He forgets how the other fellow feels. I'll pass the word around. I can promise you that not a man among us will do anything but take Merry's word for it. His confession is a big story in itself."

"Thank you," said Oswald with a cordiality which few men had seen in the dignified Englishman.

He stood talking with a group who gathered about him at the close of the play, eager as Singleton had been to discuss Merry's dramatic confession, when an usher interrupted them. "Mr. Oswald, you're wanted back of the scenes," said the boy.

Under the white glare of electricity a little group stood on the half-dimmed stage. The people in the cast were there—property men, the call boy, electricians, ushers, and the humblest employes of the house. The actors still wore their stage garb and make-up. Dorcas' hand was linked in her brother's arm. For a moment Oswald stood watching her. Her face was flushed, her eyes shone, she seemed transfused by happiness.

Merry stretched out a welcoming hand to Oswald. "We've been waiting for you, Oswald, to round out our circle," he cried gaily. "I had a Scotch grandmother. When she reached the western wilderness and built a home, she made her husband carve over the chimney-piece: 'We're a sibb tae ane anither here.' Once, when I was a little boy, she explained it to me. I understood. The English language won't translate these words, but they mean that there's nobody here but the best of friends. Because we are a sibb tae ane anither here tonight I want to break a secret to you. It is a more wonderful secret than the news I gave to the audience."

Merry looked about him with a quick, boyish smile. "I used to say I could not make a curtain speech to save my life. Tonight I feel as if I were blossoming out. I seem capable of speeches behind the curtain as well as in front. I suppose happiness makes an orator of a man." He laughed joyously. "But—to my secret. This dear lady, whom you all love and honor, has promised to be my wife."

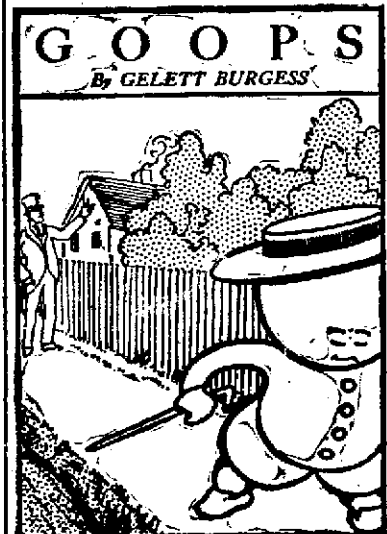

He held out his hands to Dorcas and caught hers, then he drew her into his arms as if they stood alone in some empty corner of the world.

THE END.

Merry Stretched Out a Welcoming Hand.

ITCHED SO, HE TORE HIS FLESH RESINOL CURED

Washington, D. C., Dec. 3, 1913: "All over my body were small pimples which itched me so that I could just grab my flesh and tear it apart. For three weeks I could not sleep at night until I was simply exhausted. I tried most everything that was supposed to give relief, and I can truthfully say that not until I used Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment did I begin to feel like the man I was. After only two applications there were no more symptoms of my ailment." (Signed) A. Jackson, care of Water Registrar's Office, District Building.

Resinol Ointment (50c. and $1.00), and Resinol Soap (25c.), stop itching instantly and speedily heal eczema, and other skin humors, pimples, dandruff, sores, burns and piles. Sold by every druggist. Don't be fooled by "substitutes" for Resinol offered by a few unscrupulous dealers. For free trial, write to Dept. K.K., Resinol, Baltimore.

SECRETARY LANE'S NEW ASSISTANT IS JUST PLAIN "BO"

Bo Sweeney of Seattle is the new assistant secretary of the Interior. He arrived in Washington a few days ago to get acquainted before he starts work. Asked about his peculiar first name, he replied that it was just plain "Bo," with no frills or even a period. Mr. Sweeney is well known all along the Pacific coast, was a delegate to the Denver convention in 1906 and has served several terms in the legislature.

A Human Churn
WHEN the food reaches the stomach it is subjected to a peculiar churning movement by the muscular walls of the stomach. (See Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser, page 45). In the liver, kidneys and skin, the blood is purified of its waste materials—these organs act as human filters, leaving the blood pure and clear—unless liver, digestive tract and kidneys are clogged.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery
is a stomach, liver and kidney tonic—by assisting the stomach to assimilate, the liver to filter, the kidneys to act—the poisons are removed, the red blood corpuscles are increased and one feels light, fresh and active instead of logy, dull and heavy. The "Discovery" stimulates the stomach, increases action of heart and arteries and is a most satisfactory alternative in blood-taint of any character. The refreshing influence of this extract of native medicinal plants has been favorably known for over forty years. Everywhere some neighbor can tell you of the good it has done.

Sold by all medicine dealers in liquid or tablet form; or send 50 one-cent stamps to Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and a trial box will be mailed you.

Dinner Stories

"Here, sir," said the antique dealer, displaying a huge sword to a clerical looking collector, "ever see anything more interesting than that? That's Balaam's sword."

"But, my good man, that cannot be," said the domineer. "Balaam never had a sword. He only wished for one."

"Quite right, sir," said the dealer. "This is the one he wished for!"

Did Their Courtship in Jail.
After carrying on a love correspondence while serving sentences of one month at Knutsford, Cheshire, England, two ex-prisoners were married recently on their release at the parish church, which stands opposite the prison. While in jail the man proposed and was accepted. The prison chaplain made the necessary arrangements for the wedding, and himself officiated at the ceremony.

TO FIND WORK FOR THE UNEMPLOYED

Anthony Caminetti.

To find work for the unemployed who are already here and to place immigrant aliens who are constantly arriving is the object of the establishment of a chain of free employment agencies which has just been inaugurated by the U. S. department of labor through Secretary of Labor Wilson and Anthony Caminetti, commissioner of immigration. Twenty cities in various sections of the country have been decided upon as the first agencies.

Saved Northwest to United States.
The death of Francis Xavier Mathieu in Aurora, Ore., at the age of ninety-six years, reveals a maker of history. It is claimed that the vote of this French pioneer preserved a great slice of the northwest to the United States. The old Oregon territory, including Oregon, Washington, Idaho and a part of Wyoming, once trembled in the balance. May 3, 1843, settlers assembled at Champong, Ore., to decide whether they should be under British rule or the rule of the United States. Two lines formed, one for the British and one for the United States, and when the count was made there were fifty-one on each side. For many minutes the men of the two lines glared at one another and not a word was spoken. Suddenly, to the surprise of all, Mathieu, a Frenchman, born and reared under the British flag, stepped out of the British line and walked slowly to the American line and Oregon was saved to this country.—Springfield Republican.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, July 13, 1874.—E. G. Fifield's son and a young man named Fellows were speeding along Main street when the horse suddenly broke, and in the struggle necessary the buggy was brought into collision with a lumber wagon nearly opposite the jail, one wheel mounting the hub of the wagon. The sudden tilting of the vehicle threw out the two young men, who were shaken roughly but otherwise unhurt. Left uncontrolled the steed dashed madly along colliding with various obstacles until the buggy was badly damaged. Wheels, dashboard and shaft broken besides many other injuries. The barn opposite the Sheriff's quarters was found to be on fire this morning shortly after twelve o'clock. Edgar Richardson says that about 12:30 last night as he was putting out the lamps in the fourth ward near the Harria works when he noticed a bright light across the river. He hastened across the lower bridge and to the barn owned by Mr. Joshua Corning, where he found a light had been kindled at and beneath the front door. He could see where a match had been struck to light the fire, and having secured a pail of water he extinguished the conflagration with little difficulty. A fire of supposed incendiary origin was discovered this morning in the American house on East Milwaukee. The conflagration was extinguished before much damage could be done. The comet took much more looking for on Sunday night and those who wish to cultivate its acquaintance should improve each shining hour. The Forepaugh circus troupe and mammoth show will be the great attraction on this week. A man near Sutherland's wanted to knock his head off but the other party remaining silent the inebriate summed his coat and went home.
